

昆明市 2019 届高三摸底调研测试

英语参考答案及评分标准

一、听力部分（共 20 小题，1.5 分/题，满分 30 分）

1~5 ABBCA 6~10 ACABC 11~15 BCBAC 16~20 BABAC

二、阅读理解（共 20 小题，2 分/题，满分 40 分）

21~23 ACD 24~27 CBCB 28~31 DDAA 32~35 BDBC 36~40 GCEAB

三、完形填空（共 20 小题，1.5 分/题，满分 30 分）

41~45 CDABD 46~50 ACADB 51~55 CABAC 56~60 DBDBC

四、短文填空（共 10 小题，1.5 分/题，满分 15 分）

61. to avoid 62. from 63. looking 64. frighten 65. What
66. carefully 67. It 68. were published 69. unusual 70. surprised

五、短文改错（共 10 小题，1 分/题，满分 10 分）

I have a 5-year-old sister. Sometimes she fights against myself for candies. When Mom me
makes me ~~to~~ give my share to her, I always feel unwillingly. Last week, I caught [^] serious cold unwilling a and had to follow the doctor's advices to take medicine. Before I came home from school, I advice When/As noticed her leaving candies beside my medicine. I go up to her and asked "Hey, what are you went doing?" In a smile, she said to me, "Candies make me happy because I put them here to make With so/and you happy today." That was the greatest thing which I'd ever experienced.
that/删去 which

六、书面表达（共 1 题，满分 25 分）

Dear Tom,

Knowing that you are interested in my local food, I bought a Chinese local recipe for you as a gift.

It is a best-seller with an attractive cover that is recommended by many popular restaurants in China. When going through the content, not only can you find varieties of Chinese local food, but also you can get to know the simple tips on making them. In addition, the recipe is translated into English and that's why I chose it for you. Yesterday afternoon I delivered it through Mail Express. You are expected to receive it next Wednesday. Please keep me informed if you get it.

I hope my gift can bring you joy and enrich your life.

Sincerely yours,
Li Hua

听力原文

Text 1

M: I'm hungry. All the food smells tasty today and makes my mouth water.

W: Let's line up here. This line seems a little shorter.

Text 2

W: I really appreciate your driving me around the city.

M: It's my pleasure. I'm available today, and it's important that you can find a good apartment near your new job.

Text 3

M: Why are there so many people overweight?

W: Well, there are many things that affect people's size and weight, such as lack of fitness and long working hours in the office. And teenagers often find it hard to refuse attraction of junk food.

Text 4

W: John, can I borrow your notes of the lecture yesterday afternoon?

M: Sorry, Anna. I was absent yesterday. Why not ask your roommate?

W: I called Jenny this morning, but I couldn't get through.

Text 5

M: Hey, Mary. Are you going to watch the World Cup tonight?

W: Yeah, I wish! I've had a really tiring week. I think I have to take a rest. But you know ... the exam ...

M: I understand. But sometimes to relax is to restart. Why not go with us?

W: You're right.

Text 6

M: You don't look well. Maybe you should take the day off from work.

W: I couldn't do that. I have an important meeting today.

M: Do you feel OK?

W: Not really. After a 12-hour flight, I've got jet lag, and on top of that, I think I've also got flu.

M: Why don't you call your secretary and tell her to put off the meeting? You should really get some rest or you'll end up feeling even worse than you do now.

W: OK. I'll call my secretary. Zach, what's that on your arm?

M: It looks a bit red, but I don't know why.

W: Let me see. It looks like that you're sunburnt. We'd better go to the clinic and get some medicine. Let's go.

Text 7

W: Tomorrow I'll take you to some places you will have an interest in.

M: Where else haven't we been yet?

W: The Culture Collection Exhibition Halls.

M: Sounds great! How many kinds of culture collections do they have?

W: Well. There're actually around 200 kinds of culture collections in this city. That's half of the culture collections in China. There's one exhibition for ancient collections, and several rooms with modern collections for private collectors.

M: Private collectors! They must have excellent collections. I'll go and see each of them. What collections can I see?

W: The collections include precious sea shells, drama costumes, ancient coins, mini-musical instruments and model ships...

M: Enough! I can't wait anymore.

Text 8

M: Good evening, Madam. What can I do for you?

W: Good evening. My husband and I would like a room, please. Is there any room available? We don't have a reservation.

M: Let me see. Yes, we have one room left. You're lucky. It's the last one.

W: Good. We're tired after camping for several days, and we're looking forward to relaxing in a comfortable room.

M: This room has two double beds. Its number is 56, at the end of the hotel. It's quite a comfortable room.

W: How much is it for one night? We're going to continue our trip tomorrow morning.

M: Forty-five dollars a night for two. Would you like to pay for the room in cash or with a credit card?

W: Credit card. We don't like to carry much cash with us on our trips. And we would like a morning call tomorrow morning.

M: What time would you like?

W: 7:30 am. Thank you.

M: Alright! A morning call at 7:30 am. Room 56. Anything else?

W: No, nothing else.

M: Please fill out this information card. Here is your key. You can park your bikes in front of our room. And our breakfast begins at 7 am. Enjoy your stay with us.

Text 9

W: Wow, this is amazing. I'm glad we've come here. So cool!

M: I always love skiing. You know, it's a cool game for cool people. Stay with me and you will be cool, too.

W: Hey, look over there. It seems that there is something interesting going on. Let's go and have a look.

M: Sure. It's probably the skiing show. Adam told me there were many skiing clubs whose members put on shows to attract more visitors.

W: It's so dangerous. My mom would never allow me to do that.

M: Hey, don't be so sad. It's an extreme sports show. What else can they do to attract more visitors? Just enjoy the show.

W: You are right. But what if the snow falls down from the mountain?

M: They are all very experienced and great skiers. So I suppose the chance for them to be buried by snow is small.

W: Anyway, the show is breathtaking. By the way, where did they get so much snow here?

M: Don't you know that? Are you kidding me?

W: Not everyone is as lucky as you to have a father who is a scientist.

M: Sorry. Well, they have the most advanced snowmaking machine.

W: Do you think the snowmaking may cause pollution?

M: It's possible. But the boss here said they were doing whatever they could to avoid that.

W: It's a good thing. OK, let's go skiing.

Text 10

Parking rules are rules for a reason — and I'm reminding everyone why it's so important to follow them.

My son, Cary, was born with a brain bleeding which leads to difficulties of movement and speech. As a result, Cary uses a wheelchair. A week ago, I was leaving a doctor's appointment with my son when I noticed a car parked over the blue lines of a parking lot, making it difficult for Cary to get into our car. We had to wait for the car owner to come out of the store, who said she didn't know what the lines meant. At the time of his birth, we had no clue to the struggles we would meet with while raising a child with special needs. Sometimes, even people with disabilities don't understand how important it is not to park over the blue lines. And this issue is what we face every day. After talking with many friends and families, we noticed that many people just do not know what those lines are for. My husband and I made the decision to use social media as a way to raise awareness for Cary and his condition. We try our best to be positive instead of blaming people just because they do not know. Our intention is only to remind the public and friends who might not know how important it is to watch the lines when parking. I hope people can be more conscious of their actions and continue helping those in need.